Experience

Peter specialises in commercial and property law. He was admitted to practice in 1999 and has worked in Sydney and overseas.

His practice serves local small to medium businesses, Councils in NSW and Victoria and NSW Area Health Services and focuses on commercial and property transactions.

Peter has particular expertise advising clients on planning and implementing mergers and acquisitions, commercial contracts, commercial property development and commercial leasing.

Peter has advised:

- a client in relation to a major redevelopment and agreement for lease and lease of multiple tenancies located on the St Kilda foreshore.
- a New South Wales Area Health Service on several major projects including the development and sale of land to a university for a clinical school at Bateman's Bay Hospital and the development and sale of land of a combined medical centre and community health centre under the NSW Health One initiative within the grounds of hospitals located in Corowa and Cootamundra.
- a large regional Bank on SMSF lending and developed all transaction documentation in compliance with the Commonwealth Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993.

Peter has completed a company director's course with the Australian Institute of Company Directors and has expertise in the management and governance of boards which compliments his commercial law practice.

Background

Early in his career Peter gained invaluable legal experience in Sydney, working at the New South Wales Crown Solicitors Office.

In 1999 he relocated to the United Kingdom, where he spent 3 years working for some of London's largest law firms including Simmons & Simmons. Whilst in their projects division Peter assisted senior lawyers and Partners in the £3.6bn Channel Tunnel Rail Link project and the Jarvis Track Renewal Alliance Contract, one of the largest projects by Railtrack in the United Kingdom.

Peter also worked for 12 months in Dublin with Marsh Mercer Kroll within their Pensions division.

In 2002 Peter returned to the Albury area and continues his focus on commercial law.

He is active in the local community and is the current board member/former Chairman of The Personnel Group Ltd, a not for profit organisation acting and advocating on behalf of disadvantaged job seekers in the community.
